

Nineteenth-Century Art Worldwide

a journal of nineteenth-century visual culture

Petra ten-Doesschate Chu, Martha Lucy, and Gabriel P. Weisberg

Editors' Welcome

Nineteenth-Century Art Worldwide 3, no. 1 (Spring 2004)

Citation: Petra ten-Doesschate Chu, Martha Lucy, and Gabriel P. Weisberg, "Editors' Welcome," Nineteenth-Century Art Worldwide 3, no. 1 (Spring 2004), <http://www.19thc-artworldwide.org/spring04/ncaw-spring-2004-editors-welcome>.

Published by: Association of Historians of Nineteenth-Century Art

Notes:

This PDF is provided for reference purposes only and may not contain all the functionality or features of the original, online publication.

License:

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial 4.0 International License Creative Commons License.

Editors' Welcome

With this issue, Nineteenth-Century Art Worldwide is embarking on its third year of publication. Though still in our infancy, we are growing up fast. Recently, we were informed that both Art Index and BHA have agreed to index NCAW, which suggests that we have already reached an impressive level of maturity.

For this, we need to thank you, our authors, our peer reviewers, and our readers. You all have been very supportive and enthusiastic and this certainly has been beneficial to our rapid development. We are also grateful to Sura Levine, our promotions manager, who has pursued the indexing goal with energy and tenacity.

Funding for the journal continues to be a challenge. We are delighted, therefore, that the Fine Art Dealers Association (FADA) has renewed their generous grant to NCAW. We are also grateful for the continued support of Michael Schwartz, Director of Gallery Michael, Seton Hall University, the University of Minnesota, and the University of the South, as well as for a generous gift from Dr. and Mrs. Gabriel P. Weisberg.

We are happy to present you in this issue with five articles that range geographically from England via France to Poland and that demonstrate a variety of methodologies and approaches. The issue also features an impressive group of reviews of books and exhibitions that cover such diverse subjects as Vuillard, Manet and Spain, the Australian artist Charles Conder, and the marriage of science and the visual arts.

Our sincere thanks go to Robert Alvin Adler, Elizabeth Allen, and Janet Whitmore, the copy-editors of this issue, as well as to our web designer Emily Pugh, for getting vol. 3, no. 1 into its finished form.